Hopkins Acquires Mr. Funnel

EMPORIA, KS. October 6, 2011 – Hopkins Manufacturing Corporation announced today that it has acquired the Mr. Funnel product line. This acquisition strengthens Hopkins as the leading provider of value-added fluid handling products to the automotive and recreational products aftermarket under the FloTool brand.

Mr. Funnel is the leading portable fuel filter solution. Its' proprietary technology filters out water, dirt and debris from a variety of types of fuels. Using Mr. Funnel technology helps prevent engine damage from contaminants. Their fuel filters are commonly used by: do-it-yourselfers for mowers and lawn & garden power equipment; contractors for generators; farmers for tractors and generators; off-road enthusiasts, boaters and pilots. What they all have in common is a need to protect their investments in equipment by making sure they have clean fuel going into their tanks.

"This acquisition reinforces Hopkins' leadership in value-added fluid handling products. We are excited about the opportunity to work with our customers to expand their sales," said Bradley T. Kraft, President and Chief Executive Officer of Hopkins. "There is a significant opportunity to increase our customers' sales by placing the Mr. Funnel products wherever they sell gas cans, generators or power equipment. "

"Changes in fuels have also played a role in expanding demand for this portable fuel technology. Traditional gasoline is already a magnet for water. This problem is compounded when ethanol is added, making fuel even more susceptible to contaminants," said Mike Williams, Hopkins Vice President of Marketing. "These containments can turn into huge repair bills. The great thing about Mr. Funnel fuel filters is that they are easy to use and so effective."

Hopkins will distribute the Mr. Funnel products from its Emporia, Kansas distribution center.
